GERMANS CAPTURE ANOTHER FORT

Ring of Forts Surrounding Verdun Broken by the Capture of Fort Douaumont—Brennender Regiment Took the Fort by Storm.

By Telegram to The Freeman.
Berlin, Feb. 26.—(By wireless)—German troops have smashed a hole in the ring of forts defending Verdun, capturing Fort Douaumont, four miles northeast of the city itself.

Fort Douaumont is three miles southeast of the ridge of Louvemont to which the French retired on Thursday.

It was captured by storm. The capture was made by the 24th regiment of Brandenburgers, who, despite the hurricane of shells and the falling fire of scores of French machine guns, rolled forward in an irresistible wave.

In a hand to hand combat in the works the Germans drove their way to victory with the cold steel.

Fort Douaumont was regarded as one of the strongest of the twenty-one forts which guard Verdun.

It was built of steel, stone and concrete and was defended with the heaviest guns in the French army.

The capture of the fort opens the way for an advance against its sister works, Fort Belleville, Fort St. Michel and Fort Souville.

The charge which resulted in the fall of Fort Douaumont was made in a blinding snow storm following a bombardment of the works by great 15 and 17 inch guns. For hours the monster howitzers of the Germans had pounded the fort, the shells tearing gigantic ridges in the solid concrete masonry and blasting the steel turrets into kindlings.

The French guns replied and the duel of drum fire rocked the ground and shook the air with its thunder for nearly 50 miles.

The following official statement was given by the war office:

"The armored fortress of Douaumont, the northeastern pillar of the permanent main line of the fortifications of Verdun was captured by storm yesterday by the 24th regiment of Brandenburgers. It is now firmly in German hands."

This announcement was followed by demonstrations of joy. Flags were raised over public and private buildings and praises of the gallant Brandenburgers were on all lips. There was a procession through Unter den Linden and the national anthem was sung before the palace.

The capture of Fort Douaumont means a gain of approximately two miles of ground for the Germans. More important still it removes the chief menace to an advance south of Ornes, for the sweeping plain south of that town was under the guns of the fort.

Under cover of darkness, following the victory, the Germans worked feverishly bringing up fresh guns and ammunition and now the big mortars in the fort are smashing the city of Verdun itself. Fires have broken out and many of the French reserves which were held there by General Humbert have been forced to retire to escape annihilation by the German shells.

The sixth day of the battle of Verdun ends the German lines only four miles from Verdun, having a six mile advance since last Sunday when the drive against the French fortress was opened.

It is believed that the capture of the fortress is now a matter of only a few days.

PARIS DENIES FORT HAS FALLEN

Terrific Battle But Germans Were Forced to Retire to Former Position, According to French Newspaper Reports.

By Telegram to The Freeman.

Paris, Feb. 26.—The German crown prince is hurrying his troops against the entire arc of forts defending Verdun on the northeast side and the terrific battle is raging with the utmost violence in a blizzard and in perishing cold.

Using fresh soldiers that were brought up to replace the German troops who had been wearied by constant day and night fighting the German crown prince began a series of fresh assaults after a cannonade of the greatest fury.

The attack centered against Fort Douaumont, the way being opened by the voluntary abandonment of works in front of the fort by the French to avoid useless bloodshed.

The Teutons fought with the greatest bravery and never faltered as the storm of French shells tore through their ranks. But flesh and blood, no matter how great the gallantry could not stand before the death scythe of the French fire. Shells from hundreds of guns and bullets from countless machine guns, and thousands of rifles decimated the German ranks.

Battalion after battalion was hurled forward by the German commander in utter disregard of the enormous loss of human life. Soon the field was piled high with corpses and the charging soldiers stumbled over the bodies and fell amid their slain. It was carnage such as had not been seen before in the war. Even the German rushes at Ypres when their charges were described as gigantic assaults in which the soldiers rolled forward like endless waves of the sea were as nothing compared with the onslaughts of the massed phalanxes north of Verdun.

The Germans were forced to retire to their old positions, leaving thousands of dead and wounded upon the battle field. The tremendous fire prevented Red Cross workers from rescuing the wounded and, amid the snow and ice and biting winds, the wounded pleaded in frenzied shrieks for help throughout the night.

French military experts believe that the battle of Verdun is nearing its close and that it will end in defeat for the Germans.

One of them writes as follows: "The stubborn resistance met by the crown prince's troops, who, during five days of fighting of desperation unparalleled in the world's history, have been unable to carry any positions other than those acknowledged by the French to be untenable, has caused losses which the Germans cannot support any longer."

The military critic of the Echo de Paris predicts that the battle will come to an end by Monday.

MAIL SERVICE TO BE CONSIDERED

Post Office Department Promises Congressman Ward "Early Consideration" of the Inadequate Service Rendered Here.

By Telegram to The Freeman.

Washington, Feb. 26.—That the question of better mail service across the Hudson at Kingston will receive early consideration by the Post Office Department is indicated by a letter received yesterday by Congressman Ward from the Second Assistant Postmaster General, under whose office this matter is properly taken up. The letter follows:

Hon. Charles B. Ward, House of Representatives.

My Dear Congressman:—Referring to your personal call at this office on the 18th inst., at which time you filed a request from the Chamber of Commerce of Kingston, N. Y., and business men of Kingston urging the establishment of better mail facilities between the east and west side of the Hudson river at Kingston by an increase of the frequency of mail messenger service on route No. 297,888 at that point, I have the honor to inform you that an early consideration will be given the question and you will be advised of the action taken.

Yours very truly,

OTTO PRAEGER,

Second Asst. Postmaster General.

The readers of The Freeman will be informed as to the termination of this matter as soon as the report of the Post Office Department is sent to Congressman Ward.

WOULD USE LOBBYISTS IN CONGRESS FOR SUFFRAGE.

New York, Feb. 26.—Taking a leaf from the male politicians, the suffragettes are advocating lobbyists in congress to force the passage of the Susan B. Anthony amendment.

Mrs. Carrie Chapman Catt, president of the National Woman Suffrage Association, speaking before the Federal Conference of the New York State Woman Suffrage Party, where she was introduced by Mrs. Norman De R. Whitehouse, chairman of the conference, said:

"One trouble with the women of America," she said, "is that they are not working seriously enough in Washington. We should have lobbyists there. Another fault right in this state was the feeling of coming defeat in the midst of the fight."

"There were just enough of you women," the speaker went on, "who felt that you had no chance of victory and who designedly went to country and seashore, to bridge fighting to throw the balance of the way."

"If we women had that momentum that goes with the faith and ing to win, we would have polled enough extra votes in the last election to have carried the state."

HERBERT CO. FIRE ESCAPE ADEQUATE

Evidence Shows it is Better Where it is Than Where the Inspector Ordered it Placed, so Complaint is Dismissed.

This morning in recorder's court before Recorder Lang an interesting trial was held in the case of the state industrial commission against the Herbert Brush Company, who were charged with not having provided two means of exit from the factory on Thomas street. C. E. Whelan represented the department while Amos Van Etten appeared for the brush company. At the close of the case Recorder Lang dismissed the complaint and discharged the defendant.

The complaint against the brush company was made by Factory Inspector John T. Kelley, who had made an inspection of the building. It was brought out from his testimony that two years ago he had inspected the factory and at that time he had suggested that fire proof windows be installed, which was done. Last November he made the "discovery" that the means of exit were not adequate. According to his theory the fire escape on the building was not remote enough from the interior stairway. He wanted the company to place the fire escape on the opposite side of the building. At the present time the fire escape was 53 feet away from the stairway, and by placing it where he wanted it it would be about 65 feet away, a difference of about twelve feet, which would make the fire escape remote enough for the department.

John F. Herbert, the president of the company, when he took the witness stand, called the attention of the court to the fact that by placing the fire escape where the department wanted it would mean that the men at work in order to get to the fire escape would have to climb over shafting and machinery, while now they have a clear space to get to it.

The company has also installed a sprinkler system at a cost of $1,600 and has done everything to make it safe for the employees in case of a fire. He brought out the fact that the company had all young men employed and that 40 per cent of the employees were members of local fire companies.

When the company leased the building, which was formerly the plant of the Bruyn Paper Company, a number of extra windows had been placed in it and another means of escape from the building in case of fire was afforded by the fact that the roof of the adjoining building was on that side of the factory and the men at work, if they did not care to use the fire escape, could step out of the window onto this roof and get to the ground in that way.

The inside stairway met with the approval of the department, it was brought out, but the fire escape did not because the steps connecting each landing were pitched at 70 per cent grade and should be but 60 per cent. Also that the steps were composed of round rungs and they should be perfectly flat. There was no question but that the fire escape was sufficiently strong for the work for which it was intended. This fire escape was placed on the building at the time it was built, about twenty-five years ago.

At the close of the case Recorder Lang said that in interpreting the building laws common sense and reason should be exercised. In considering the evidence presented it was shown that a small number of men were employed on the third and fourth floors and that it was possible for the men to get out of the factory onto the adjoining roof which made a third means of exit possible. He said that it was evident that the company had reasonably complied with the law and he dismissed the complaint and discharged the defendant.

GERMAN FLEET MAY MAKE A DASH

By Telegram to The Freeman.
London, Feb. 26.—Extraordinary sharp lookout is being maintained by Great Britain's naval forces in anticipation of a dash to sea of the German fleet. A dispatch from Berlin states that the Kaiser was at Wilhelmshaven on Wednesday and supplementary advices from Amsterdam add that he went from Wilhelmshaven to Kiel.

Following receipt of these reports it was recalled that the German fleet has always shown considerable activity after previous visits from the Kaiser and it was thought that while the crown prince's army was assailing Verdun the grand fleet of Germany might attempt to gain a victory in the North Sea.

Dismay was caused in London by the news that German troops had captured Fort Douaumont, one of the chief fortifications of Verdun, which arrived here from Berlin shortly before noon, but it caused no diminution in the determination of the English to wage war until Germany is smashed.

English military experts had expected the Germans to fail in their mighty assaults on the Verdun defenses, but it was declared this afternoon that even the capture of the mighty French fortress would not affect the final outcome of the war. The German losses in their attacks on the French barrier forts, the English experts asserted, will be too great to permit them to make another rush upon Paris such as followed the drive through Belgium.

They pointed out that the fall of Russia's great forts on the eastern front did not give the Germans final victory and also that the early drive of the Teutons in the west was halted on the Marne, where there were no great fortifications, but only mobile forces.

DAY'S WAR NEWS AT A GLANCE

Berlin—Germans smashed holes in ring of forts defending Verdun, capturing fort Douaumont, four miles from city. Fort captured by storm despite heavy gun fire of French.

Paris—French admit further withdrawals of troops north of Verdun. Artillery duel extreme violence raging along Verdun front. Germans suffering heavy losses.

Petrograd—Persian city of Kermandah captured by Russians. Large number of prisoners taken.

Constantinople—Allied warships again bombarded Turkish positions at Dardanelles.

VERDUN IS THE GATEWAY TO PARIS

By Telegram to The Freeman.

Paris, Feb. 26.—Verdun, the great fortress on the Meuse river, about which one of the greatest battles of the war is now raging, is known as the "Gateway to Paris." It is one of a chain of fortresses lying across eastern France, the others being at Belfort and Epinal. The fort at Maubeuge, which was the northernmost link was captured by the Germans early in the war.

Before the war Verdun had a population of 22,000. It is split by the Meuse river and also by a canal which flows into the Meuse from the west.

The city is girdled by twenty-one forts, all of modern construction and protected with the heaviest ordnance in the French army.

Two railway lines pass through Verdun, one from the east and west, the other from the north and south. In addition eight important highways center there. One of these runs south along the Meuse to St. Mihiel, where the Germans hold a salient on the west bank of the river; another leads eastward to St. Menesboul and connects with the famous old Roman Road; another leads through the Argonne to the north west while others pass into a network of highways which lie in the Voivre district.

Verdun has been within cannon shot of the battle lines since the German drive on Paris was halted and the crown prince's army entrenched itself north of the city. It has been shelled by long range German mortars and also by German aircraft but had suffered little from this fire.

The military importance of Verdun lies chiefly in the fact that it is one of the few good places on the Meuse. It lies on a range of hills and the guns of its forts not only control the Meuse and its bridges but also the railroads and important highways leading to the west. In order to advance through such country as that surrounding Verdun highways are absolutely essential and if Verdun could be taken the Germans would acquire the roads.

The city is a picturesque old place with crooked narrow streets and historic buildings. Verdun holds an important place in early European history for in the treaty of Verdun in 843 the possessions of Charlemagne were divided among the three grandsons, Lothaire, Louis the German and Charles the Bald. The French and German members of the empire were never again united. The city was early the seat of a bishop and remained free and imperial until 1552 when it was taken by the French although it was not formally united to France until the peace of Westphalia in 1648 by which Austria gave up the three famous bishoprics of Toul, Verdun and Metz.

Verdun was bombarded by the Prussians in 1912 and, having surrendered after a few hours, the inhabitants accorded an amicable reception to the conquerors, to whom a party of young girls made an offering of the bon hons for which Verdun is noted. The revolutionists recaptured the city after the battle of Valmy and sent three of those innocent maidens to the scaffold. The city was again bombarded by the Germans in 1870 and after a gallant resistance of three weeks was captured.

In the court of the Hotel de Ville, on the east side of the Meuse, are four cannon presented to the city by the French government in recognition of its brave resistance to the Germans in the Franco-Prussian war.

The Cathedral of Notre Dame, on the west side of the Meuse, dates back to the eleventh century.

Removing Old Kingston Academy

The work of razing the old Kingston Academy building is progressing rapidly and already the Maiden Lane wing, in which was located the art room and class rooms, has been torn down to the second story. The rear of the building on Albany avenue is also being demolished. All of the metal work and wood trimmings have been removed and little but the brick walls now remain.

Training Class to Reorganize.

The teachers' training class of the Kingston City Sunday School Association will reorganize at the Y. M. C. A. Monday evening at 7:30. Rev. A. S. Cole will have charge of the first period and will begin the New Testament. Rev. J. L. Leeper will then lecture on Jerusalem as Christ saw it. All interested in this meeting are invited to attend.

Flood Expected in Albany.

By Telegram to The Freeman.
Albany, Feb. 26.—With a rise of about four feet in the river and only a slight drop in temperature, the indications were here today that Albany would have a flood of large proportions by tomorrow. The rain continued for more than twenty-four hours. Snow in the Adirondacks has been melted and river men expect to see ice now in the Mohawk river come down and push out what remains of the Hudson river ice.

On March 4, the ladies of the Rosary Society of the Immaculate Conception parish, Delaware avenue, will have at their school hall a carnival social and supper. Proceeds for the benefit of the Immaculate Conception Church. It will be the first social of its kind this year and, as there will be good music and other amusing attractions and suitable refreshments, a great attendance is anticipated.

The new company leased the building which was formerly the plant of the Bruyn Paper Company, a number of extra windows had been placed in it and another means of escape from the building in case of fire was afforded by the fact that the roof of the adjoining building was on that side of the factory and the men at work, if they did not care to use the fire escape, could step out of the window onto this roof and get to the ground in that way.

Recorder Lang dismissed the complaint and discharged the defendant. Irving Egnor, a substitute fireman, and Louis Kolts, Jr., were appointed firemen of the third grade at a meeting of the fire commissioners Friday night, their appointment to take effect the first of March. As a result of the addition of these two men to the department, the force at Cornell and Excelsior stations has been enlarged to three men at each station. After these men have assumed their duties the firemen at the above named stations who formerly were on duty for a period of ten days before their one day holiday, will now have this time shortened to eight days, thereby giving them more time off duty.

The addition of the new men will necessitate the removal of two men from the Central station. John J. Hoffman will be removed to Wiltwyck station while William G. Geary will go to Cornell station. Both Egnor and Kolts, the new men, will start their work at the Central station. Chief Chipp was directed to appoint James J. Conlin captain at the Wiltwyck station and Edward Albright captain at Cornell, according to the new ruling. These captains will be held responsible for the conditions at their respective stations and will act as substitute firemen at fires until foremen arrive on the scene.

The newly appointed firemen were summoned and an explanation of their duties made by President Kolts. At the conclusion of his talk he gave to Louis Kolts, Jr., a badge which the elder Kolts had worn for 35 years as a volunteer fireman.

Three substitute firemen were appointed from the eligible list of the civil service in the following order: Fred Leverich, Charles V. Brown, and Farrell F. Finkle.

Commissioner Elting, in behalf of the committee in charge of the union gospel meetings in St. James's Church, extended the thanks of the committee to Chief Chipp for the presence of uniformed firemen at each of the meetings.

The chief's report for the month was read and contained the accounts of the inspection of buildings throughout the city but only minor infractions of the fire laws were found. The chief's new auto is being repainted—a brilliant red color which accounts for its non-appearance at recent fires. One thousand feet of hose were received during the month and also a new deluxe set, which gives a bigger stream of water when needed at fires.

The election of the following officers of Excelsior Hose Company was approved by the board: foreman, W. B. Martin; first assistant foreman, C. A. Rockwell; second assistant foreman, G. Wells.

The following new members of Excelsior Hose Company were approved by the commissioners: David M. Kidd, 457 Washington avenue; Henry L. Schipp, 450 Washington avenue; Herbert Gellert, 138 North Front street; Frank Wood, 351 Washington avenue.

Exempt firemen's certificates were given to James J. Diamond and John W. Miller of Central Hook and Ladder Company for five years' service as volunteer firemen.

German Fleet MAY MAKE A DASH

By Telegram to The Freeman.
London, Feb. 26.—Extraordinary sharp lookout is being maintained by Great Britain's naval forces in anticipation of a dash to sea of the German fleet. A dispatch from Berlin states that the Kaiser was at Wilhelmshaven on Wednesday and supplementary advices from Amsterdam add that he went from Wilhelmshaven to Kiel.

Following receipt of these reports it was recalled that the German fleet has always shown considerable activity after previous visits from the Kaiser and it was thought that while the crown prince's army was assailing Verdun the grand fleet of Germany might attempt to gain a victory in the North Sea.

Dismay was caused in London by the news that German troops had captured Fort Douaumont, one of the chief fortifications of Verdun, which arrived here from Berlin shortly before noon, but it caused no diminution in the determination of the English to wage war until Germany is smashed.

English military experts had expected the Germans to fail in their roughly assaults on the Verdun defenses, but it was declared this afternoon that even the capture of the mighty French fortress would not affect the final outcome of the war. The German losses in their attacks on the French barrier forts, the English experts asserted, will be too great to permit them to make another rush upon Paris such as followed the drive through Belgium.

The pointed out that the fall of Russia's great forts on the eastern front did not give the Germans final victory and also that the early drive of the Teutons in the west was halted on the Marne, where there were no great fortifications, but only mobile forces.

Carnival Social.
On March 4, the ladies of the Rosary Society of the Immaculate Conception parish, Delaware avenue, will have at their school hall a carnival social and supper. Proceeds for the benefit of the Immaculate Conception Church. It will be the first social of its kind this year and, as there will be good music and other amusing attractions and suitable refreshments, a great attendance is anticipated.

The Bargains Are Today.
In Friday's Freeman the large advertisement of P. A. Lasher read that the bargains were for Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday, which was in error and should have read "Saturday" instead. The advertisement will be found in another column of tonight's paper.

On March 4, the ladies of the Rosary Society of the Immaculate Conception parish, Delaware avenue, will have at their school hall a carnival social and supper. Proceeds for the benefit of the Immaculate Conception Church. It will be the first social of its kind this year and, as there will be good music and other amusing attractions and suitable refreshments, a great attendance is anticipated.

The new company leased the building which was formerly the plant of the Bruyn Paper Company, a number of extra windows had been placed in it and another means of escape from the building in case of fire was afforded by the fact that the roof of the adjoining building was on that side of the factory and the men at work, if they did not care to use the fire escape, could step out of the window onto this roof and get to the ground in that way.

The inside stairway met with the approval of the department, it was brought out, but the fire escape did not because the steps connecting each landing were pitched at 70 per cent grade and should be but 60 per cent. Also that the steps were composed of round rungs and they should be perfectly flat. There was no question but that the fire escape was sufficient, strong for the work for which it was intended. This fire escape was placed on the building at the time it was built, about twenty-five years ago.

Verdun is the Gateway to Paris.

By Telegram to The Freeman.
Paris, Feb. 26.—Verdun, the great fortress on the Meuse river, about which one of the greatest battles of the war is now raging, is known as the "Gateway to Paris."

It is one of a chain of fortresses lying across eastern France, the others being at Belfort and Epinal. The fort at Maubeuge, which was the northernmost link was captured by the Germans early in the war.

Before the war Verdun had a population of 22,000. It is split by the Meuse river and also by a canal which flows into the Meuse from the west.

The city is girded by twenty-one forts, all of modern construction and protected with the heaviest ordnance in the French army.

Two railway lines pass through Verdun, one from the east and west, the other from the north and south. In addition eight important highways center there. One of these runs south along the Meuse to St. Mihiel, where the Germans hold a salient on the west bank of the river; another leads eastward to St. Menesbould and connects with the famous old Roman Road; another leads through the Argonne to the north west while others pass into a network of highways which lie in the Woerthe district.

Verdun has been within cannon shot of the battle lines since the German drive on Paris was halted and the crown prince's army entrenched itself north of the city. It has been shelled by long range German mortars and also by German aircraft but had suffered little from this fire.

The military importance of Verdun lies chiefly in the fact that it is one of the few good places on the Meuse. It lies on a range of hills and the guns of its forts not only control the Meuse and its bridges but also the railroads and its important highways leading to the west. In order to advance through such country as that surrounding Verdun highways are absolutely essential and if Verdun could be taken the Germans would acquire the roads.

The city is a picturesque old place with crooked, narrow streets and historic buildings. Verdun holds an important place in early European history for in the treaty of Verdun in 843 the possessions of Charlemagne were divided among the three grandsons, Lothaire, Louis, the German and Charles the Bald. The French and German members of the empire were never again united. The city was early the seat of a bishop and remained free and imperial until 1552 when it was taken by the French although it was not formally united to France until the peace of Westphalia in 1648 by which Austria gave up the three famous bishoprics of Toul, Verdun and Metz.

Verdun was bombarded by the Prussians in 1792 and, having surrendered after a few hours, the inhabitants accorded an amicable reception to the conquerors, to whom a party of young girls made an offering of the bon bons for which Verdun is noted. The revolutionists recaptured the city after the battle of Valmy and sent three of those innocent maidens to the scaffold. The city was again bombarded by the Germans in 1870 and after a gallant resistance of three weeks was captured.

In the court of the Hotel de Ville, on the east side of the Meuse, are four cannon presented to the city by the French government in recognition of its brave resistance to the Germans in the Franco-Prussian war.

The Cathedral of Notre Dame, on the west side of the Meuse, dates back to the eleventh century.

Removing Old Kingston Academy

The work of razing the old Kingston Academy building is progressing rapidly and already the Maiden Lane wing, in which was located the art room and class rooms, has been torn down to the second story. The rear of the building on Albany avenue is also being demolished. All of the metal work and wood trimmings have been removed and little but the brick walls now remain.

Training Class to Reorganize.

The teachers' training class of the Kingston City Sunday School Association will reorganize at the Y. M. C. A. Monday evening at 7:30. Rev. A. S. Cole will have charge of the first period and will begin the New Testament. Rev. J. L. Leeper will then lecture on Jerusalem as Christ said it. All interested in this meeting are invited to attend.

Flood Expected in Albany.

By Telegram to The Freeman.
ALBANY, Feb. 26.—With a rise of about four feet in the river and only a slight drop in temperature, the indications were here today that Albany would have a flood of large proportions by tomorrow. The rain continued for more than twenty-four hours. Snow in the Adirondacks has been melted and river men expect to see ice now in the Mohawk river come down and push out what remains of the Hudson river ice.

THE KITCHEN CABINET

Instead of fog and rain and dampness everywhere, we have clear dry snow that sets the blood in motion, that covers the land like a mantle, bringing to earth and covering up hundreds of tons of impurities and the unsightliness of a spent vegetation, and fertilizing the soil as it can be fertilized in no other way, preparing it to be the birthplace of such products as are the wonder and admiration and envy of the world.

FURNACE COOKING.

There are many dishes which are most appetizing cooked in the furnace.

A pot of beans placed on the ledge of the furnace door just inside will bake well all day, needing no attention. Care should be taken that the right kind of utensils for cooking are used, as even solid crockery may produce a crack and away go your beans on the cellar floor, if nothing more disastrous happens. All tempered earthenware dishes are safe to use in the furnace, aluminum if not used at too great a length of time and, of course, iron kettles and frying pans are perfectly safe. For further protection one could slip a roaster with the baking dish inside or put a sheet of sheet iron between the dish and the fire.

A delicious steak may be served by broiling over the coals. Use a long-handled cornpopper or put a long handle on the wire broiler used for that purpose. Have a dish set on the ledge to catch the gravy as you turn the steak.

Apples baked in a stone dish after being peeled and quartered are much more delicious than the ordinary apple sauce. Casserole dishes of various kinds are easily taken care of in the furnace. A dish which one is at all doubtful of endurance, should be covered with asbestos before putting in the sheet-iron shield. Beans are best put in at night when the fire is banked, as they need such long, slow cooking. Stews could be cooked this way also as well as cereals and soups.

Cheap cuts of meat, Irish stews, and many dishes may be well cooked in this manner. By a few experiments the housewife will discover many dishes which she can prepare and leave to the furnace to finish.

Heavy padded holders and sometimes the coal shovel will be needed to carefully remove the dishes without burns. Where gas is the only fuel for cooking, this furnace method is highly economical.

Ancient Greek Had Wisdom.
The earliest writer to conceive of the idea of a rotating earth was Philolaus, a Greek, who lived in the fifth century before Christ. The same man, on purely philosophical principles, also hit upon the idea of the sun as the center of our system—an idea that had to wait 2,000 years for confirmation, until Copernicus came in 1540.

THE KITCHEN CABINET

Instead of fog and rain and dampness everywhere, we have clear dry snow that sets the blood in motion, that covers the land like a mantle, bringing to earth and covering up hundreds of tons of impurities and the unsightliness of a spent vegetation, and fertilizing the soil as it can be fertilized in no other way, preparing it to be the birthplace of such products as are the wonder and admiration and envy of the world.

FURNACE COOKING.

There are many dishes which are most appetizing cooked in the furnace.

A pot of beans placed on the ledge of the furnace door just inside will bake well all day, needing no attention. Care should be taken that the right kind of utensils for cooking are used, as even solid crockery may produce a crack and away go your beans on the cellar floor. If nothing more disastrous happens. All tempered earthenware dishes are safe to use in the furnace, aluminum if not used at too great a length of time and, of course, iron kettles and frying pans are perfectly safe. For further protection one could slip a roaster with the baking dish inside or put a sheet of sheet iron between the dish and the fire.

A delicious steak may be served by broiling over the coals. Use a long-handled cornpopper or put a long handle on the wire broiler used for that purpose. Have a dish set on the ledge to catch the gravy as you turn the steak.

Apples baked in a stone dish after being peeled and quartered are much more delicious than the ordinary apple sauce. Casserole dishes of various kinds are easily taken care of in the furnace. A dish which one is at all doubtful of endurance should be covered with asbestos before putting in the sheet-iron shield. Beans are best put in at night when the fire is banked, as they need such long, slow cooking. Stews could be cooked this way also as well as cereals and soups.

Cheap cuts of meat, Irish stew, and many dishes may be well cooked in this manner. By a few experiments the housewife will discover many dishes which she can prepare and leave to the furnace to finish. Heavy padded holders and sometimes the coal shovel will be needed to carefully remove the dishes without burns. Where gas is the only fuel for cooking, this furnace method is highly economical.

Ancient Greek Had Wisdom.
The earliest writer to conceive of the idea of a rotating earth was Philolaus, a Greek, who lived in the fifth century before Christ. The same man, on purely philosophical principles, also hit upon the idea of the sun as the center of our system—an idea that had to wait 2,000 years for confirmation, until Copernicus came in 1540.

In having 18 ft. your eyes with glasses, you obtain those enviable features of classical beauty, and of course, of real genuineness, and of being genuinely comfortable.

KINGSTON, N. Y., FEB. 26, 1916.

President Wilson already holds the world's record for numerous changes of mind on great issues, but that is no reason why he should not emphasize his distinction. Bizarre as the idea seems, it is by no means impossible that he will yet come out in favor of a protective tariff in spite of his long anti-protection career. He seems now to be laboring in a mental fog regarding this subject, and when he emerges from it he may find himself on the side opposite to that from which he started. He told the National Chamber of Commerce at its recent meeting that there was "nothing in either the doctrine of free trade or that of protection." This appears to mean that our tariff law should contain no free list, and that no duty should be high enough to equalize foreign competition. In short, there should be a uniform rate of duty which would encourage importations and thus bring in the greatest amount of revenue. Yet at the same time the President spoke in favor of his tariff commission plan, although he dodged any explanation of what such a body is good for if we destroy both protection and free trade. The President is a logical thinker, and the mistakes he has made have been due to his practice of drawing conclusions from insufficient data. Once let him get hold of a few more essential tariff facts, and he will be ready to knock another Democratic fetish into a cocked hat.

In urging legislation to prevent American citizens from traveling on belligerent ships, Billy Bryan advances this brilliant argument: "A Mayor keeps the people of his city out of the danger zone during a riot. Can our Government afford to do less when the world is in riot?" Passing over the fact that there is quite a lot of difference between our Government and a Mayor, we wonder where Bryan got his information. Every little while there is a street railway strike with attendant rioting, yet citizens go on riding through the riotous districts with the at least tacit approval of the Mayor, who devotes his energies to restoring order. No Mayor ever tried to make it a felony for a citizen to ride in a trolley car in time of riots. This proposition was left for Bryan's friend, Senator Gore. We suppose that if either Bryan or Gore was Mayor of a town in which a riot broke out he would order all the peaceful inhabitants to remain in the cellars of their houses, since their public appearance might result in the trouble and expense of punishing criminals. Nothing should ever be done to injure the sensitive feelings of rioters, whether on land or sea.

Specific legislation providing military training in the public schools of the State is deemed inadvisable by the State Board of Regents at this time. This decision was only to be expected. The spectacle of this august body of educators being confronted with any innovation demanding action within a reasonable length of time is hardly in keeping with the proprieties. The Regents commit themselves so far as to favor appointment of a commission to study the subject and ascertain the desirability of military training being introduced into our school system. This is as far as they care to go. The expedient of delegating duties and responsibilities to a commission of inquiry is a favorite one. It might be expected, however, that the Regents would be sufficiently expert on matters educational to decide this question off hand. In any event their attitude approaches indifference to a most vital subject, no matter how much their conservatism may be in keeping with precedent.

Because they took a half holiday without leave on the birthday anniversary of the Father of His Country, thirty high school students at Middletown are being compelled to memorize a poem which is to be recited before the Board of Education before their privileges are restored. Contrasted to the sound birchings of two score years ago, this metrical punishment is quite in keeping with modern educational tendencies. To learn any poem worthy of the name should hardly, it seems to us, be made in the nature of a punishment. The boasted accomplishment of modern teaching is to make the subject itself pre-eminently attractive to the student mind. Just how far this policy operates on poetry is suggested by such an enforced injection of a poem into the minds of recalcitrant students. Once learned, the lines would stick in the memory no doubt just as long as the old-fashioned switching, but the effect on student appreciation of the beauties of poetry would seem anything but beneficial.

LITTLE LAUGHS.

"How do you like his dancing, girl?" "He leans on his partner so." "Well, he got his practice dancing with a chair."—Louisville Courier-Journal.

Bix—"Have a good time at the banquet last night?" Dix—"Splendid! I drank myself into insensibility before the speaking began."—Boston Transcript.

"You must make your speech bring your ideas home to your constituents." "Yes," rejoined Senator Sorghum, "and if I'm not careful what I say, it'll bring me home along with them."—Washington Star.

"What do I get for this stunt?" asked the laughing amateur. "You get nothing from me for it as a manager," replied that individual, "but if I were a magistrate as well you'd get sixty days."—Baltimore American.

"Bliggins is trying to be an optimist." "The last time I saw him he thought everything was going to smash." "He thinks so yet. But he's getting into a frame of mind that makes him suspect that may be he'll enjoy seeing it happen."—Washington Star.

Discipline.

A certain woman demands instant and unquestioning obedience from her children. One afternoon a storm came up and she sent her little son John to close the trap leading to the flat roof of the house.

"But, mother," began John.

"John, I told you to shut the trap!"

"Yes, but mother—"

"John, shut that trap!"

"All right, mother, if you say so—"

"John!"

Whereupon John slowly climbed the stairs and shut the trap. Two hours later the family gathered for dinner, but Aunt Mary, who was staying with the mother did not appear. The mother did not have to ask many questions. John answered the first one.

"Mother, she is on the roof."—New York Times.

No Change in Shylock.

An old woman who lived in the country recently visited some friends in the city. During her stay she was taken to see "The Merchant of Venice," a play she had witnessed more than 30 years before, and which she had always had a strong desire to see again. Calling next day, a friend asked her how the previous night's performance compared with that of 30 years ago.

"Well," she replied, "Venice seems to have smartened up a bit, but that Shylock is the same mean, grasping creature that he used to be."—Vancouver World.

A Strategist.

Two youngsters, one the possessor of a permit, were fishing on a certain estate when a gamekeeper suddenly started from a thicket. The lad with the permit uttered a cry of fright, dropped his rod and ran off at top speed. The gamekeeper was led a swift chase. Then, worn out, the boy halted. The man seized him by the arm and said between pants: "Have you a permit to fish on this estate?"

"Yes, to be sure," said the boy quietly.

"The boy drew the permit from his pocket. The man examined it and frowned in perplexity and anger.

"Why did you run away when you had this permit?" he asked.

"To let the other boy get away," was the reply. "He didn't have none."—Argonaut.

The Road to Success.

Charles M. Schwab was talking in his native Loretto about success.

"I married on $6 a week," he said, "but I knew success would come, and before the winter was out I was making $5,000 a year."

"In everything—in war, in munition making, in blowing up powder factories—there's one road which leads straight to success."

"If, for example, you're a playwright, the road to success is the happy ending. Every successful playwright bears in mind the dialog of the young couple at the end of 'Hamlet.'"

"How silly of that Shakespeare," said the girl, "to drown Aphelia and murder Hamlet. Why, they ought to have married!"

"I ain't no high brow critter," the young man agreed, "but that's how I'd fix it."—New York World.

Population's Growth.
In the time of Augustus Caesar the population of the world was said to be only 50,000,000. One hundred years ago it had increased to 700,000,000. Today it is estimated at 1,732,000,000. When Columbus discovered America there were about 300,000 Indians in the confines of the present United States. At the time of the Revolution there were 3,000,000 white men. Now we are approaching the 100,000,000 mark.

Horse Not Really Intelligent.
Horses are generally given credit for a great deal more intelligence than they actually possess. Scientific tests show that in wisdom such as human beings display, horses are hopelessly outclassed by dogs, monkeys, and even by cats. The horse can be taught to do certain things just because he is too stupid to have ideas of his own. Like many human prize pupils, he can learn but cannot think.

For Oiling Shafts.
There is danger in the oiling of shafts. Even though the machinery is stopped, someone is likely to start it before the worker is through with his task. This element of danger is removed through the invention of an oiler, which may be used while the worker stands on the floor, thus obviating the necessity of going among running belts, pulleys and shafts, possibly on a rickety ladder.

SCHOOLS MAKING GOOD AMERICANS

New Members of Board of Education
Pleased With What They Saw in the High School and in School
No. 3.

What the Kingston schools are doing to produce good American citizens who by reason of their training will be able to earn their living or perform other duties was the theme of two interesting reports made to the board of education at its regular meeting Friday evening by Trustees Virgil B. Van Wagonen and Wesley D. Hale.

Prejudice Vanished With Knowledge.
Mr. Van Wagonen said that the visiting committee unfortunately had been able to visit only two of the schools—the high school and No. 3. He was frank to say that he had not come to the high school prejudiced against the vocational end of the institution and minimizing the importance of several vocational features of the curriculum, particularly the cooking department and the sewing room. He wished to be equally frank in saying that after spending a half day in the high school he found that he had not only with a very favorable impression but satisfied that vocational training was a very excellent thing. He was well pleased with all that he saw at the high school. The only question on which he was not quite clear was whether the vocational end would detract from the thought and attention of teachers and pupils from other branches, or take time which should be devoted to other studies.

Grade Pupils Grasp For Knowledge.
Mr. Van Wagonen has been a teacher himself, before becoming a lawyer, but he said he never enjoyed himself more than he did when the committee visited School No. 3. Without disparagement to the other schools or their pupils, he thought that in No. 3 was the best building material he ever had seen—the best material in the city for making good American citizens to be found anywhere. The pupils were not only hungry for knowledge but were grasping and most anxious for it and it was a pleasure to see what the principal and teachers were doing to satisfy them.

One Lesson is Cleanliness.
When the committee entered one of the rooms, the pupils were going through their calisthenic exercises, and as their hands rose and fell he noticed that the pupils, without exception, "had the prettiest lot of white paddies" he ever had seen. Their hands were clean, and as their sleeves dropped, they showed that the cleanliness extended up to the arm, and their finger nails were clean. The sight, he was frank to admit, made him look at his own hands in shame.

Self Control The Greatest Lesson.
The children in whose studies he had particularly interested himself for the purpose of ascertaining what they were doing were between six and ten years old. While he was interested in seeing them learning to read, to write, to spell, to use English correctly, and to learn as much as their grades may teach of geography and other subjects he was particularly impressed and pleased to see the children being taught the principles which underlie American government—the principles of self control, obedience, promptness, respect to their superiors and politeness. There was not a sullen face to be seen anywhere; all were eager and anxious to respond and they acted as promptly as though they were moving on springs.

Where They Learn Patriotism.
The school, like the other city schools, is provided with a phonograph, and several selections were played. The instant that the strains of "America" were heard, the pupils with one accord rose to their feet and remained standing until the song ended.

The work of the pupils in the high school did not interest him as much as the work of the pupils in No. 3, and the work of all the grammar schools was in keeping with that which he saw at No. 3, he was well satisfied that grand work was being accomplished in Kingston.

Melting Pot For Making Americans.
Trustee Wesley D. Hale said if he was to offer only brief remarks, the briefest would be to say "Amen" to what Mr. Van Wagonen had said. It was quite a good many years since he went to school, and making a record of his visit that conditions had changed since then, and the change had been an improvement. He desired to withhold either praise or criticism of the high school until he had a chance to study its workings thoroughly, but at School No. 3, which he had particularly observed, he never saw anything which had so greatly impressed him or anything which was such a tremendous success.

If No. 3 was a sample of what the city schools were doing, they were doing a greater good than anyone could imagine. He had seen nothing in recent years which was so pregnant for good and for the future welfare of this country. They are making Americans there, and making them right; from parents gathered together from all parts of the earth, the children would seem to be in a great melting pot from which they were coming out with the foundation of stalwart American citizenship ingrained in them. Out of raw material was being made a better American product than most people know about.

The proficiency of the pupils in arithmetic, said Mr. Hale, was wonderful, their work in grammar and spelling surpassed anything he had seen, and in correcting mistakes for their corrections. He was thoroughly delighted with all he had seen, and could not recall any other half day which he had spent that gave such satisfaction. He believed also that Principal Cullen was the right man in the right place.

President Bernstein continued Trustees Van Wagonen and Hale on the March visiting committee, and added himself to the committee.

Unsatisfactory Fan Will Be Replaced.
A communication from John H. Cooney of Harrison, N. J., one of the contractors for work in connection with the high school, stated that the manufacturers of the fresh air fan would replace the present fan, which is unsatisfactory with a larger fan of greater capacity, and were now at work on the larger fan.

David Goldstein to Lecture.
A communication from Kingston Council, No. 275, Knights of Columbus, requested the use of the high school auditorium on March 22, for a lecture on "Peace and War" by David Goldstein of Boston. The lecture will be free to the public. On motion of Trustee Van Wagonen, the request was granted on the usual conditions.

Lecture by L. A. Wilson.
Superintendent Michael said he had endeavored to secure L. A. Wilson of the state education department to deliver a lecture in the high school auditorium during the recent teachers' institute but had not been successful. He had just received a letter from Mr. Wilson stating that he would be glad to lecture here at a future date, and on motion of Superintendent Michael, the matter was referred to the Chamber of Commerce for his appearance here.

School Days Don't End Progress.
Trustee Hale asked whether the tendency of education had not advanced so as to provide lectures and other educational facilities for men and women after they had left school as well as during their school days.

Superintendent Michael replied that such had been the trend of education for some years, for which reason schools were used largely now for lectures and other educational objects, instead of being used as formerly merely for teaching classes.

Mr. Hale said he thought the modern trend was a good thing for men and women everywhere.

Routine Matters.
The finance committee reported the February pay roll, amounting to $10,442.57, and audited vouchers amounting to $1,780.91, which were ordered paid.

A resolution offered by the finance committee and adopted provided for deducting one per cent of the yearly salary of the teachers from their March salaries, in accordance with the requirements of the law relating to the teachers' retirement fund, the Kingston teachers having voted that such deduction be made from their March salaries.

Superintendent Michael said that the city charter amendment, which changed the time for collection of taxes, also changed the time for submitting the annual budget to the common council, and it must be in the hands of the aldermen by June 31st. June would be an extraordinary busy month, and he suggested that the building committee and supply committee make up their lists as soon as possible.

Trustee Hale suggested that the committees be as economical as possible, but not so economical as to interfere with the good work of the schools. Taxes never had been popular, and the collection of the extra school tax this year on account of the change in the city charter which took effect this year would make taxes even more unpopular than ever. This extra tax, which would be for this year only, was quite apt to make school taxes unusually unpopular unless the matter was thoroughly understood.

The board then adjourned.

All the members of the board were present except Trustees Atkins, Rafferty and Washburn.

Automobile Collision.
On Friday evening a taxicab owned by Buley, the taxicab man, and an unknown touring car locked wheels on Main street in front of the Eagle Hotel. The light Ford taxi suffered a bent axle but was able to proceed on its journey. The big car was evidently not injured as the driver proceeded on his way without delay. The number of the machine was secured. The street was in a very bad condition for either wagons or automobiles and all who use the streets are compelled to use unusual care. The deep snow which softened with the rain and rise in temperature Friday caused deep ruts to form from which it was difficult to release a machine once in them.

Barth Gets His Chance.
William Barth, a stranger who has been about town for about two weeks, was arrested on Friday afternoon by policeman Fout. Barth had been making a nuisance of himself and was drunk at the time. This morning when arraigned before Recorder Lang he said that he had started to go to work on the ice, but owing to the storm on Friday there was no work, and he had got drunk. He did not remember just what occurred but hoped that he had done nothing unlawful. He pleaded for another chance. The recorder gave him one hour to get out of town or he would commit him to the pen at Albany. Barth got.

Illustrated Poems in School.
While some of the pupils of School No. 2 were delivering essays and recitations on the lives and works of Longfellow and Lowell, together with selections from their poems on Friday afternoon, stereopticon pictures were thrown on the screen, thereby making more vivid the verbal descriptions being given.

This form of education is a novelty in the city schools and proved very popular with both the teachers and students. Instead of having an unfavorable idea of these two illustrious poets whose birthdays occur this month, the pupils find them to be very interesting members of the human race.

Initiative Enthusiasm.
Ab Adkins says his son-in-law has a lot of enthusiasm which is largely devoted in starting the applause.

Atchison Olohe.

Rain Ends Creek Ice Harvesting

The severe rain storm of Friday has put a stop to the harvesting of ice on the Rondout creek and on the river harvesting is being carried on under difficulties today at Glasco, Steep Rocks and Kingston Point.

The rainfall raised the water in the creek to such an extent that it broke the ice up while in the river the ice was wasted from an inch to two inches. Further up where the river is narrower the work of harvesting is practically at a stop.

The rain did so much damage to the ice in the creek that it was not considered safe to walk across today and the wooden bridges that had been placed on each shore were removed this morning.

Unless there is a sudden change in the weather it is not likely that the concerns who have been busy harvesting will be enabled to secure a full crop this season.

Dig-in and Suction

The 'Chain' Tread Tire has the two necessary features to prevent skidding and slipping, particularly on wet pavements—the dig-in and the suction.

The height of the chain above the surface of the tire gives the dig-in quality.

The cup-like shape of the links gives the necessary suction to hold to the road.

SOCIETY NOTES

A delightful surprise party was held at the home of Frances Taubenburger Thursday evening. The evening was spent in dancing and games. Those present were: Ernest Single and Helen Wolf. Among those present were the Misses Hilda and Helen Brodhead, Helen Wolf, Gertrude Messinger, Verna Rowley, Mildred Egbertson, Florence Fox, Gertrude Blanshan, Frances Taubenburger, and Anna Taubenburger, and the Messrs. Ed. Fox, Dick Weber, Ernest Messinger, Harry Hutton, Bernard Burck, Frank Struble, Harold Egbertson. At midnight a dainty luncheon was served and the guests departed in the wee hours of the morning, voting Miss Taubenburger a royal entertainer.

The home of Mr. and Mrs. Henry B. Wesley on Oak street was the scene on Friday evening of a very happy gathering when Mr. and Mrs. Wesley celebrated their twenty-fifth wedding anniversary. The spacious home presented a beautiful scene robed in French colors of blue and pink and bedecked with many handsome floral decorations. When the guests had assembled the strains of Mendelssohn's wedding march, played by Miss Lillian Wesley, stole forth and soon the bridal party proceeded to the parlor where a beautiful canopy of pink and blue had been erected. While standing beneath this canopy, the song, "Do You Take This Woman For Your Lawful Wife," was sung by the Wesley trio. After this followed a program of song and recitation, including a piano duet by Lillian and Maud Wesley, recitation by Mrs. F. L. Vogt, vocal duets by the Misses Lillian and Bessie Wesley, piano solo by George Vogt, vocal solo by Miss Ethel Van Keuren of New York city, piano solo by Vandy Wesley and a Dutch sketch by the groom. Dancing and singing was then enjoyed and at an early hour refreshments were served and the bridal cake was cut by Mrs. H. B. Wesley, after which dancing was continued. As dawn drew near the guests departed, each wishing Mr. and Mrs. Wesley many more happy years of married life. Many costly and handsome gifts were received by the bridal party. Seventy-five guests were present, including a number from Newburgh, Bayonne, N. J., Crawford, N. J., Long Island, New York city and Kingston.

Blue Ribbon Dance Tonight.

A large crowd is expected to be present at the dance of the Blue Ribbon Club which takes place at Griffith's Hall on Hasbrouck avenue this evening. A large number of tickets have been disposed of, hereby assuring the success of the financial end of the affair. Many visitors are expected to be present from the various nearby towns. McLean's famous orchestra has secured a large number of the latest songs and dance melodies which they will play for the first time this evening. The reputation of this orchestra may not be in the McEnelly class, nevertheless they have a following which always attends the affairs at which they furnish the music. A good time is certain to be had by all who are fortunate enough to be present this evening.

Imperial-Van Benschoten.

A very pretty but quiet wedding will take place this afternoon at St. Joseph's Church when Miss Adah Van Benschoten, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. Van Benschoten, and Thomas J. Imperial will be united in marriage. The Rev. Father Brown, assistant pastor of St. Joseph's Church, Archibald J. Van Benschoten, a brother of the bride, will act as best man. Following the ceremony a reception to immediate relatives and friends will be held at the home of the bride's parents on Broadway. Mr. and Mrs. Imperial will leave later for an extended honeymoon trip to Washington and other places of interest. The bride is one of Kingston's most popular young women, while the groom is a promising young business man, having recently engaged in the coal business on Albany avenue extension, where upon their return Mr. and Mrs. Imperial will make their home.

Former Kingstonian Weds.

A very pretty wedding took place on Monday morning at the Church of Our Saviour, 183rd street and Washington avenue, New York city, when Miss Helen Teresa Anglin, eldest daughter of Mrs. John Anglin, was married at a nuptial mass to Joseph Henry Welsh. The bride was attired in a tailored suit of navy blue tulle and serge and wore a Watteau net of Georgette crepe. Miss Marie V. Anglin acted as bridesmaid and Captain William F. Manning as best man. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. Andrew A. Martin, professor of theology at St. Charles' College, Baltimore, Maryland, and a friend of the bride and groom. While the wedding was of a quiet nature it was largely attended by their many friends. Soles were beautifully rendered by Miss Anna Laurie, accompanied by Miss Margaret Donohue. The ceremony was followed by a breakfast at "Pabst Harlem," after which the bride and groom left for their honeymoon, which will be spent at Old Point Comfort, Virginia.

Leap Year Hop a Success.

Friday evening the young ladies of Kingston, principally high school maidens, gave this city a novelty in the way of a leap year ball. The event was held in Pythian Hall and was a pronounced success. Miller's orchestra furnished the gay music and when this started up the young ladies, in accordance with the principles of leap year, produced their dance cards which they had made out instead of the fellows doing it. and then wended their ways to their respective partners, who had been previously requested to remain. The unconventional nature of such actions will no doubt awe many Kingstonians, but it appealed very much to all those present. Moreover, the dance was in some respects quite a natural one. The young ladies were content to allow the men to lead and many of them were content to let the fellows do the usual evening, although some asserted their rights to both tasks. All of the fair sex were gowned in beautiful creations of chiffon, crepe de chene, tulle and silks, and while the dances were in progress the room was a veritable rainbow of soft and bright colors, and the floating circling assemblage radiated merriment and pleasure in all directions. Among those present were the following: the Misses Ruth Shafer, Helen Wood, Ruth Vignes, Ruth Humphrey, Alberta Silkworth, Edna Silverstein, Helen Diamond, Olga Owens, Arpha Lawson, Viva Volk, Freda Mayes, Mildred Von Wert, Marguerite Dolson, Hazel Hogaboom, Esthel Rodie, Ethel Vignes, Stella McNeils, Anna Roach, Ruth Ashley, Helen Cullen, Laura Hutton, Helen Connelly, Helen Miller, Dorothy Leighton, Elizabeth Palea, Ruth Deegan, Helen Cook, Pearl Osterhout, Ruth Bushnell, Anna Cassler, Rae Wall, Elsie Grant, Mary Hutchins, Gladys Cashin, Ruth Smith, Ruth Fuller, Lucinda Rich, Katherine Pehlman, and the young men were A. Smith, James Betts, Stanley Gregory, Louis Weber, Archie Leighton, Samuel Peyer, David Hawk, Frank and Louis Campbell, Augustus Trimmer, Bruyn Vignes, Oscar Abrams, Bernard Culloton, James Halliday, Raymond Smith, Edward Stelle, Simon Snyder, James Murphy, Russell Dana, Victor Finnan, Harold Styles, Leroy Gill, John Church, Joe Murray, Alton Miller, Sidney Wolf, Eugene Gleason, Raymond Hicks, Bernard McBride, Frank Finley, Sam Affron, Edwin Barrett, Edward Van Winkle, Albert Deyo, Lester Bore, Leroy Port, Henry Smith, and Kenneth Everett and Clyde Wood. From this it can be seen that the rainy weather in no way affected the dance and during the intermission the storm conveniently abated and the dancers repaired to Wiltwyck Inn and other nearby places for refreshments. The ball was artistically draped with the best of all decorations, our national flag, the floor was smooth as glass and the punch excellent, so the merry makers did not leave at 1 o'clock as intended, and were sorry to have to depart when the clock struck two.

Novel Social Entertainment.

Of all the clever entertainments given by the members of the Monday Afternoon Sewing Club (and for such entertainments they are justly famous) none has ever equalled the black and white dance and entertainment of last evening. The guests began arriving some time before nine o'clock and thus had the opportunity of admiring the decorations. From the over-head lights hung long streamers of black and white. A frieze of black and white had been arranged along the wall space between the windows, and more artistic silhouette medallions were hung. The tables from which the punch was served had black and white runners and wrought iron candle sticks with quaint black and white shades. But the piece de resistance was the stage. It was approached from the main floor by a flight of steps, with black and white covering. The immediate background of the stage was of white, with two enormous "Noah's Ark" yew trees in urns, (black), while high up was seen a slender black crescent moon. The flies were of black. To the right of the stage appeared a white pedestal adorned with a black basket of white poppies, while a graceful white cockatoo swung in its rig. To the left of the stage was a white garden seat, and resting on its arm stood a well-dressed man in a white suit. The musicians from the Symphony Orchestra gave quite a little concert of music to whet the appetites of the dancers, previous to the entertainment. Presently there was a roll of drums, and then another, and the procession entered from the rear of the hall, marching with awful solemnity of mien and wearing the most fantastic costumes ever seen in this staid old Colonial City. The captivating procession was led by little Miss Earna Schmidt, who in her dainty costume of black and white, looked quite like a little spirit. When the club members in their amazing garb of hoop skirt (black) in full Pierrot costume, etc., with the occasional comical head ornament of one immensely long, slender curved black feather, had grouped themselves upon the stage, little Miss Schmidt, pupil of Miss Delta Boice who also coached the club members in their dancing, gave a solo dance, that was the very epitome (pretty big word for a little girl, but deserved) of grace and unconscious charm. Throughout her dancing, she was applauded again and again, and finally was presented with a quaint and pretty nosegay of posies. A dance by the fantasists, followed, and then a comedy-tragédie (that ought to match the performance!) A fair maid—all but her tiny black masque—in white hoop-skirt, with one of those fetching feathers was wooed by an ardent black garbed Pierrot, and all but won, when a rival appeared, stole the affections of the charming lady, and carried her off, right under the eyes of the dejected suitor. A merry fantastic appeared to cheer this gloom, which proving measureless, a tiny weapon which shot electric light was given the rejected lover with which to kill his rival. Not so! The fatal shot was turned against his own head, and he dropped senseless to the floor, where he was later discovered by his faithless sweetheart. Torn with emotion she wandered to that garden seat, where was—we tell it now—a huge bottle marked "poison." She drank deeply, and sank beside her lover, her funeral plume drooping to the floor. The two were discovered by the rival, who drained the contents of the vial and dropped back to, against his lady-love. Then enter the merry one, who sizing up the situation, took up the killing bottle and turning it about found it to be filled, after all, according to the reverse side, with "Pure M.H.K." The joyful news brought to life the two victims of the poison dose, and even the electrocuted lover finding no bullets in his weapon, came to life, and a merry, yes, hilarious dance of all the fantasies brought the entertainment to a close. Throughout appropriate music was played but no word was spoken. Then came the general dancing, and certainly the costumes were unique. One couple were excellent representatives of "As You Like It," one half of their full costume being black, the other half white. There were checker-board gowns, black and white diamonds formed another gown. A fluffy robe of black net, bordered with down, was very pretty. Then there was a captivating 1830 costume, in black and white and countless others clever, quaint or pretty, and all becoming. It seemed too bad that a few guests should have broken in on the novel effect by appearing in colored costumes. The men were particularly attractive in their striped, or mottled or unusual garb, and altogether it was a huge success, and will doubtless net a fine sum for the Day Nursery work.

Deceitful Billy.

Mother (sternly to young married daughter)—Really, my dear, I am astonished at your allowing Billy to attend that farewell supper to Mr. Soakum. I understand it was a most disquieting affair.

Daughter (indignantly)—Why, mother, how can you? I am quite sure it must have been very sad. Billy distinctly told me the men filled right up, and even the main speaker of the evening was too full for utterance.—St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

Imitative Monkeys.

Monkeys never wash or bathe, though they have, as a rule, every chance to do so. Possibly experience has taught them to be afraid of crocodiles, which are pretty generally distributed on monkey haunted rivers. It is said that a number of Indian monkeys watched a party of Europeans in a boat who washed their hands and brushed their teeth. Next day the monkeys were seen to come to the river side and go through the form of washing their hands and of brushing their teeth with bits of stick.

Go Light on Buckshot.

Buckshot should be relegated to the past along with the buffalo gun and the market hunter's "cannon." It will inflict a painful wound upon deer and yet will not kill except at very close quarters. Even the poorest shot can usually score a hit with buckshot, and he will in nine cases out of ten be tempted into "letting her have it" when the game is absolutely out of effective range. About the only useful purpose for which buckshot can be recommended is in self defense against a human enemy at close range.—Outing.

Medical Dilemma.

"What should one do," asks the young doctor, "when a patient comes in and diagnoses his own case exactly?" "In such a situation," explains the experienced physician, "you must use your best judgment of human nature. If the patient is one kind of man he will appreciate your agreeing with his diagnosis as showing that he knows as much as you do; on the other hand, he may go about and say that you don't know any more than he does."—Chicago News.

HIGH SCHOOL LOSES ELLENVILLE GAME

Ellenville administered the second and worst defeat that the Kingston High School basketball quintet has suffered this season in a game at Ellenville Friday night the score being 35 to 11. The game was played according to professional rules and the locals have no alibi to offer. They were simply outclassed from start to finish. The Ellenvillers were supported by about 400 loyal fans who were rooting for their athletes all through the contest. Kierman was the principal point getter for the home boys while Dowe and Freer distinguished themselves by their playing at the forward positions for Ellenville. At half time matters did not look so bad for Kingston, the score being 14 to 5, but in the last stanza the Ellenville rearguard came back strong and rolled up a high score. Kingston's score follows:

	FB.	FP.	Pct.

THEY SAY.

A good yarn is being told at the expense of a resident of lower Broadway, who resides near the Orpheum theater. The theater recently advertised the great movie play "Damaged Goods" and for several days before the picture was scheduled a huge sign bearing the title was stretched in front of the building. The old resident was standing out in front of his domicile the other day when a friend came along and stopped to chat with him.

"What makes you look so serious?" asked the friend.

"Well, I'll tell you," said the old resident. "See that sign on the opera house over yonder? You can't get ahead of some people."

"Why, what do you mean?" queried the friend.

"Well, here they are advertising a sale of damaged goods and I'll swear I have watched the place for that week and not a bit of damaged goods have they taken in there to sell."

Roundout Baptists Win.

The downtown Baptists defeated the uptown Baptists in another match game in the Y. M. C. A. Church Bowling League on Friday evening at the association by a score of 1,907 to 1,890 pins.

MORAN WILL BE EASY

Jess Willard Is Confident of Making Fight a Short One.

Champion Thinks He Will Stop Challenger in Eight Rounds at New York—Seeking Another Battle During Month of April.

Jess Willard, heavyweight champion boxer, has never been given to boasting, but he has broken his rule since the match with Frank Moran scheduled for March 17 in New York was closed. This is probably due to this being his first chance to do so since he won the championship. Willard declares the fight with Moran will not go the ten rounds and he doubts if the Pittsburgher will last eight with him.

"I am going to make this fight as short as possible," said Willard, "although I hate to deprive the fans of the chance to see a lot of fighting for their money, but I think they will be satisfied with what they have seen after I finish with Moran. This will be only a ten-round bout and you can bet that I will fight hard and fast from the start until it ends."

"Moran, people say, is a terrific puncher. I am glad of that. The thought that he can hit will make him fight all the better, and that is what I like. When I step into the ring I like to have a man stand up and battle."

Champion Jess Willard.

tie. It makes the work so much more interesting. But I am afraid that Moran will not have much opportunity to test his punching power after I get my left jab to working. You know my left is long, has a sting behind it and shoots out with a lot of speed. Moran may want to quit after a few punches reach home.

Willard is eager to have another match after he battles Moran. He instructed his manager to seek another bout, as he feels he would like to meet another foe so long as he is in shape and has gone through all this gymnasium and outdoor training to get into trim. Jones asserts he will accept a match for April if it is offered, but it must be before April 29, as it is on that date the champion starts on his tour with a circus.

FATE OF FAMOUS CRESCUS

Former Great Trotting Stallion Now Dragging Heavy Ordnance and Supplies in Russia.

Reports that have reached George Ketcham of Toledo, O., former owner, trainer and driver of the lion-hearted trotter, Creceus, 2:02 1/4, state that the former great trotting stallion is now dragging heavy ordnance and supplies over the snow-crusted steppes of the Baltic provinces where the forces of the czar are in a death grip with Von Hindenburg.

Creceus won hundreds of thousands of dollars for Mr. Ketcham. He began to earn big dividends on the money Mr. Ketcham had invested in him when, in 1901, he defeated the Abbott, who had held the world's trotting record six years at 2:03 1/4.

Creceus, a superb stallion of Arabic strain, clipped one whole second off The Abbott's record, and thereafter within the next two years cut his own record down till at last he was able to make a mile in 1:59 3/4.

The feat of cutting the record below two minutes astonished horsemen the world over.

But fame is fleeting. In time there came along another trotting stallion, The Harvester, that clipped an almost infinitesimal space of time off the best time Creceus could make.

As though his wounded pride were killing him, Creceus began to deteriorate rapidly, and within a few years his racing days were over. He was a young, full blooded charger, and his owner, Mr. Ketcham, had no difficulty in getting a big price for him from the Russian government, which wanted him for breeding purposes. But it seems he was not a success as a sire of fast stock and he was put to work just like any other common, low-born equine.

Here's Another Giant Fighter.

Lew Bodie, a giant miner, has been unearthed in Montana. Lew has been taken in hand by Harry Pollock, who intends to match him against the big fellows. The Montana candidate for pugilistic fame is taller than Jess Willard and has a longer reach. Bodie goes skyward some 6 feet 6 inches and his reach is 85 inches. In fighting condition he weighs 215 pounds.

Good in Industry.

Thank God every morning that you have something to do that day which must be done, whether you like it or not. Being forced to work and to do your best will breed you a hundred virtues which the idle will never know.—Charles Kingsley.

The Most Remarkable Moving Pictures the World Has Ever Seen

TAKEN UNDER THE SEA

Did you know there are $300,000,000 waiting for you at the bottom of the sea? But that is not all. Listen. It is now possible for you to go after it. See the Williamson Brothers about it. But, first see their submarine picture, the most marvelous moving picture taken since the moving picture camera was invented! Taken thirty leagues beneath the surface of the sea! Down where the sharks live, and where ugly, unnameable things move silently through the watery stillness of the mysterious deep! Get enthralled, amazed, amused, interested and instructed! See these pictures before you do another thing!

The Williamson Submarine Pictures

"Wonders will never cease—you must see this picture at once." That's what "Zit" said in the New York Evening Journal. The Journal knows what's what!

Life and Character Reading

FEBRUARY 26.

The governing planet of this horoscope is Jupiter, the god of fortune, and truly it seems that this planet smiles kindly upon those having this birthdate.

There seems to be neither want nor protracted illness here, nor domestic unhappiness.

There are several love affairs and all of them culminate in long friendship.

Jealousy and envy play little part in this life.

This person is fitted to occupy a responsible position where he will be at the head of affairs. Much confidence is placed in his judgment and it is well placed.

There is some tendency to worry and fret about trifling details, but the big problems of life are always met bravely.

Th birthstone is a chrysolite. The most fortunate period begins November 14.

"ITA" PROVES A SENSATION.

Mysterious Mentality Re-engaged An- other Week at Bijou Theater.

Re-engagement of "Ita," "the mind reader," who has been inter- esting large and appreciative audi- ences at the Bijou theater this week, is announced by the management and this noteworthy psychological offering will be the offering the en- tire week. In the first part of her entertainment "Ita" appears blind- folded and accurately descends ar- ticles handed to her assistant who passes through the audience. Even the most skeptical members of the audience confess themselves baffled by this mysterious mind reader's mental manifestations.

One evening next week "Ita" will read a selection from The Freeman selected at random by any member of the audience. She is blindfolded during this act. The issue of her newspaper will make no difference. A special matinee for ladies only will be given Thursday afternoon. All sorts and conditions of questions are answered by "Ita," whose dem- onstrations are among the most re- markable ever witnessed by King- ston audiences.

ICE JAM BLOCKS MOUTH OF CREEK

An ice jam at the mouth of the Rondout creek this morning put a stop to all navigation and up to the time The Freeman went to press to- day the ferry Transport had been un- able to force her way through the ice. The heavy rainfall of Friday broke up the ice and all morning the ice had been floating down toward the mouth of the creek. Owing to the fact that the river was frozen over the ice from the creek was un- able to find egress into the river and so piled up at the mouth of the creek, the ice jam extending from near the gas house in Ponckhockie to the en- trance to the creek. The Transport made a vain effort to buck her way through the ice jam on the 11:30 o'clock trip this morning, but was forced to give over the battle and re- turn to her slip. At last reports the tug Rob and the ferry expected to endeavor to break a channel through the ice jam on the regular 2:40 o'clock trip of the ferry. Those who had seen the ice jam, however, were of the impression that the two boats would be unable to force a way through.

ELLENVILLE.

Ellenville, Feb. 26.—The game of basketball between Ellenville high school and the Kingston high school, played at Norbury Hall, on Friday evening, February 25, re- sulted in a victory for the Ellenville High school team. The score at the end of the game stood 35 to 11 in favor of Ellenville. Music was furnished by Mance's full orchestra, assisted by Charles C. Brady of Mid- dletown. Dancing was enjoyed by the young people after the game.

Owing to the fact that the Kingston high school won a victory a few weeks ago, the Ellenville boys are very much elated over the result of the game on Friday evening.

Mr. and Mrs. M. Eugene Clark, who have been spending the winter in California, and are now stopping at Atlanta, Ga., for a few days, are scheduled to arrive at home in El- lenville the first of March.

The Lowry-Lawrence entertainers will appear at Norbury Hall on Wed- nesday evening, March 8. This is the final number of the lecture course, given by the Pioneer Engine Co., who are proud to offer this at- traction as the closing one of the current season. The public of El- lenville have enjoyed the highest class of entertainments this year, and that could be induced to come here, and the people have appreciated the efforts that have been made by the Pioneers.

Mrs. Fred Kuhlman spent Thurs- day with friends and relatives in Middletown, N. Y.

Judge and Mrs. W. D. Cunning- ham, Judge Murray and Miss Edith Wright gave a dance at the Edge- brook Club on Wednesday evening.

Mrs. Charles Bradford has suf- fered a stroke of apoplexy and is in a serious condition.

Mrs. Guy Gould has returned home, after spending several weeks with relatives and friends at St. Regis Falls, her former home.

Thomas H. Collins, H. W. Dean and William Easman of this village attended the annual reunion of the 120th regiment, held at Kingston on Tuesday of this week. The veterans report a fine time with a fine dinner, well served, at the Stuyvesant.

One cold morning this week, Leon- ard Coddington, of Cragmoor, went into his barn and was very much astonished to find two fine raccoons snugly stowed away in the hay.

The cold weather and deep snows had evidently driven the animals to this place in search of both food and shelter. The winter has been a hard one for the raccoons and other wild animals, as well as for the people of this country.

Mrs. Bell is quite seriously ill at her home on Hermann street with the grip, and is under the care of a trained nurse, Miss Henrietta Reimus.

J. H. Stephenson, who was strick- en with paralysis, a few weeks ago, remains about the same.

OPERATORS SEEK INCREASE.

West Shore Telegraphers Ask More Pay and Less Hours.

Preparations are being made by the railroad telegraph operators em- ployed by the West Shore railroad, between New York and Albany, to again present a request to that com- pany for an increase in wages and several other minor concessions. With a purpose of putting in concrete form their demands upon the company, two meetings of Local No. 8, Railroad Telegraph Operators, were held on Thursday in the rooms of the local in Newburgh. The night operators of the road, numbering about thirty, met at 10:30 o'clock in the morning and that evening the day operators convened.

The details of the demands to be presented by the operators have not been made known, but it is under- stood that, in addition to a raise in wages, they will ask for a maximum day of 10 hours and a vacation for all operators.

KINGSTON, N. Y., FEB. 26, 1916.

President Wilson already holds the world's record for numerous changes of mind on great issues, but that is no reason why he should not emphasize his distinction. Bizarre as the idea seems, it is by no means impossible that he will yet come out in favor of a protective tariff in spite of his long anti-protection career. He seems now to be laboring in a mental fog regarding this subject, and when he emerges from it he may find himself on the side opposite to that from which he started. He told the National Chamber of Commerce at its recent meeting that there was "nothing in either the doctrine of free trade or that of protection." This appears to mean that our tariff law should contain no free list, and that no duty should be high enough to equalize foreign competition. In short, there should be a uniform rate of duty which would encourage importations and thus bring in the greatest amount of revenue. Yet at the same time the President spoke in favor of his tariff commission plan, although he dodged any explanation of what such a body is good for if we destroy both protection and free trade. The President is a logical thinker, and the mistakes he has made have been due to his practice of drawing conclusions from insufficient data. Once let him get hold of a few more essential tariff facts, and he will be ready to knock another Democratic fetish into a cocked hat.

In urging legislation to prevent American citizens from traveling on belligerent ships, Billy Bryan advances this brilliant argument: "A Mayor keeps the people of his city out of the danger zone during a riot. Can our Government afford to do less when the world is in riot?" Passing over the fact that there is quite a lot of difference between our Government and a Mayor, we wonder where Bryan got his information. Every little while there is a street railway strike with attendant rioting, yet citizens go on riding through the riotous districts with the at least tacit approval of the Mayor, who devotes his energies to restoring order. No Mayor ever tried to make it a felony for a citizen to ride in a trolley car in time of riots. This proposition was left for Bryan's friend, Senator Gore. We suppose that if either Bryan or Gore was Mayor of a town in which a riot broke out he would order all the peaceful inhabitants to remain in the cellars of their houses, since their public appearance might result in the trouble and expense of punishing criminals. Nothing should ever be done to injure the sensitive feelings of rioters, whether on land or sea.

Specific legislation providing military training in the public schools of the State is deemed inadvisable by the State Board of Regents at this time. This decision was only to be expected. The spectacle of this august body of educators being confronted with any innovation demanding length of time is hardly in keeping with the proprieties. The Regents commit themselves so far as to favor appointment of a commission to study the subject and ascertain the desirability of military training being introduced into our school system. This is as far as they care to go. The expedient of delegating duties and responsibilities to a commission of inquiry is a favorite one. It might be expected, however, that the Regents would be sufficiently expert on matters educational to decide this question off hand. In any event their attitude approaches indifference to a most vital subject, no matter how much their conservatism may be in keeping with precedent.

Because they took a half holiday without leave on the birthday anniversary of the Father of His Country, thirty high school students at Middletown are being compelled to memorize a poem which is to be recited before the Board of Education before their privileges are restored. Contrasted to the sound birching of two score years ago, this metrical punishment is quite in keeping with modern educational tendencies. To learn any poem worthy of the name should hardly, it seems to us, be made in the nature of a punishment. The boasted accomplishment of modern teaching is to make the subject itself pre-eminently attractive.

to the student mind. Just how far this policy operates on poetry is suggested by such an enforced injection of a poem into the minds of recalcitrant students. Once learned, the lines would stick in the memory no doubt just as long as the old-fashioned switching, but the effect on student appreciation of the beauties of poetry would seem anything but beneficial.

LITTLE LAUGHS.

"How do you like his dancing, kirtle?" "He leans on his partner so." "Well, he got his practice dancing with a chair."—Louisville Courier-Journal.

Bix—"Have a good time at the banquet last night?" Dix—"Splendid! I drank myself into insensibility before the speaking began."—Boston Transcript.

"You must make your speech bring your ideas home to your constituents." "Yes," rejoined Senator Sorghum, "and if I'm not careful what I say, it'll bring me home along with them."—Washington Star.

"What do I get for this stunt?" asked the haughty amateur. "You got nothing from me for it as a manager," replied that individual. "But if I were a magistrate as well you'd get sixty days."—Baltimore American.

"Bliggins is trying to be an optimist." "The last time I saw him he thought everything was going to smash." "He thinks so yet. But he's getting into a frame of mind that makes him suspect that may be he'll enjoy seeing it happen."—Washington Star.

Discipline.

A certain woman demands instant and unquestioning obedience from her children. One afternoon a storm came up and she sent her little son John to close the trap leading to the flat roof of the house.

"But, mother," began John. "John, I told you to shut the trap!"

"Yes, but mother—"

"John, shut that trap!"

"All right, mother, if you say so—but—"

"John!"

Whereupon John slowly climbed the stairs and shut the trap. Two hours later the family gathered for dinner, but Aunt Mary, who was staying with the mother did not appear. The mother did not have to ask many questions. John answered the first one.

"Mother, she is on the roof."—New York Times.

No Change in Shylock.

An old woman who lived in the country recently visited some friends in the city. During her stay she was taken to see "The Merchant of Venice," a play she had witnessed more than 30 years before, and which she had always had a strong desire to see again. Calling next day, a friend asked her how the previous night's performance compared with that of 30 years ago.

"Well," she replied, "Venice seems to have smartened up a bit, but that Shylock is the same mean, grasping creature that he used to be."—Vancouver World.

A Strategist.

Two youngsters, one the possessor of a permit, were fishing on a certain estate when a gamekeeper suddenly darted from a thicket. The lad with the permit uttered a cry of fright, dropped his rod and ran off at top speed. The gamekeeper was led a swift chase. Then, worn out, the boy halted. The man seized him by the arm and said between pants: "Have you a permit to fish on this estate?"

"Yes, to be sure," said the boy quietly.

"You have? Then show it to me." The boy drew the permit from his pocket. The man examined it and frowned in perplexity and anger.

"Why did you run away when you had this permit?" he asked.

"To let the other boy get away," was the reply. "He didn't have none."—Argonaut.

The Road to Success.

Charles M. Schwab was talking in his native Loretto about success.

"I married on $6 a week," he said, "but I knew success would come, and before the winter was out I was making $5,000 a year."

"In everything—in war, in munition making, in blowing up powder factories—there's one road which leads straight to success."

"If, for example, you're a playwright, the road to success is the happy ending. Every successful playwright bears in mind the desire of the young couple at the end of 'Hamlet.'"

"How silly of that Shakespeare," said the girl, "to drown Ophelia and murder Hamlet. Why they ought to have married!"

"I ain't no high brow critic," the young man agreed, "but that's how I'd fix it."—New York World.

Population's Growth.
In the time of Augustus Caesar the population of the world was said to be only 50,000,000. One hundred years ago it had increased to 700,000,000. Today it is estimated at 1,731,000,000. When Columbus discovered America there were about 300,000 Indians in the confines of the present United States. At the time of the Revolution there were 2,000,000 white men. Now we are approaching the 100,000,000 mark.

Horses Not Really Intelligent.
Horses are generally given credit for a great deal more intelligence than they actually possess. Scientific tests show that in wisdom such as human beings display, horses are hopelessly outclassed by dogs, monkeys, and even by cats. The horse can be taught to do certain things just because he is too stupid to have ideas of his own. Like many human prize pupils, he can learn but cannot think.

For Oiling Shafts.
There is danger in the oiling of shafts. Even though the machinery is stopped, someone is likely to start it before the worker is through with his task. This element of danger is removed through the invention of an oiler, which may be used while the worker stands on the floor, thus obviating the necessity of going among running belts, pulleys and shafts, possibly on a rickety ladder.

Old Superstitions.

In certain parts of the Slav countries a bride bows to the fire on the hearth when she first enters her new home. In parts of Bohemia families will not permit a brand to be taken from the hearth by an outsider or for the use of another family. In Albania, nothing unclean is thrown into the fire. Also after the birth of a child, forty days must elapse before a brand may be taken from the fire for the use of another household.

MENKE'S DAILY SPORTING LETTER

(By Frank G. Menke.)

New York, Feb. 26.—The Phillies, in our opinion will not figure very largely—if at all—in the 1916 pennant fight in the National League.

They won in 1915, not because they were wonderfully strong, but because all the other clubs were weak, either normally or because of mid-season injuries. The mighty arm of Grover Alexander was the real power that lifted the Quakerstown outfit to the crest of baseball. It is unlikely that the wonderful Alex ever can duplicate his work of a year ago. He may pitch better baseball in spots, he may turn in a better average. But it seems beyond the range of possibility that he ever again will rise to the sublime heights in the critical moments as he did last year.

The Phillies will take the field in 1916 without any noticeable changes in the lineup. They haven't acquired any youngsters who look likely to blossom forth into big league flowers. And, as we view it, the 1915 Philie outfit will not have a real chance against the greatly improved machines that other cities will send into the battle.

Braves Look Good.

The Braves look about as good as any club in the Tanager circuit. The addition of Ed Konetchy ought to improve the batting and fielding power. The Braves have a few young pitchers who may be able to jump into the lineup regularly. They have fair batting power, great fielding strength and a superlative "pep" and some real pitchers. Theirs is a machine built compactly; a machine with speed and endurance.

The Giants are a problem. They have been strengthened greatly by the addition of several Federal Leaguers and a dozen stars of lesser magnitude but have they been strengthened sufficiently? If McGraw can grab off two or three real pitchers from that flock that he will take south with him, the New Yorkers ought to be back among the pennant battlers, because their infield and outfield are extremely powerful.

On paper, the Giants look better than they have for many years. But are they good enough to set the pace from the start—and hold it until the finish?

Reds Are Dark Horses.

Those Cincinnati Reds will make the biggest noise that any Rhineland club has made for many years—or we miss our guess. Charlie Herzog, the "battling" manager is extremely confident that his club will be in the fight all the way into the stretch—and Herzog's optimism is shared by many of the doers. The Reds will have a great infield with Melitt, on first, Esmund at second, Herzog at short and Groh at third, and they'll have a fine outfield, too. Behind the bat, the Reds are as strong as any other club in the league, while their pitching strength is increased at least 40 per cent by purchases of Federal League and "bush" talent.

The Pirates cannot be figured as a powerful club from this February viewpoint. They never were in the fight in 1915, yet the plan seems to be to send practically the same crew into battle in 1916—unless some real major leaguers are found among the youngsters. Jimmy Callahan may be able to put the club into the fight, but it seems doubtful. The Pirates must be rebuilt before the Smoky City folks can have their pennant dreams come true.

Dodgers Loom Up.

Those Dodgers will bear watching. They put up a great fight in 1915, and lost because they couldn't hit toward the tag end of the season. Early in the year the pitchers wobbled and the batters knocked down fences. Later on, when the hurlers were doing wonderful work, the team slumped horribly at the bat. A dozen games would have been won—instead of lost—had one or another of the Dodgers been able to deliver the timely wallop. But it was lacking.

This year, declares Wilbert Robinson, those Dodgers are going to hit—and hit consistently. Furthermore, they have gained reserve strength through the acquisition of some good looking youngsters. Joe Tinker insists that he's going to lead his Cubs-Whales outfit to the crest of the National League. He ought to. The merging of the two clubs gave him the chance to choose from over 50 real ball players. Tinker's big problem has been to decide which men to keep. He's allowed but 21. If he makes the proper selection, he should have a combination that will be hard to beat.

Cards Don't Figure.

The Cardinals seem doomed to the second division—and a deep down place, too. They haven't been strengthened as have the other clubs, and although Miller Huggins has some good pitchers and some fairly good fielders, he lacks real batting power.

It looks like New York, Boston, Chicago and Brooklyn to fight it out for first division honors, with Cincinnati and Philadelphia in the "dark horse" class, and Pittsburgh and St. Louis to battle to a finish for the cellar place.

Good Mixer on Broadway.

Charles E. Terpening, for five years in charge of the dispensary at the Hotel Wiener, is now holding a similar position at Former Supervisor Thomas Leonard's cafe on Broadway. Mr. Terpening is a popular young man whose many friends wish him success at his new post in the trenches.

Poultry Keeping in Back Yards.

One would think that now when we hear so much of the high cost of living there would be more hens kept to supply the table with fresh eggs and an occasional good chicken dinner. A backyard with room for a rough building of 8 or 10 feet square and a small yard is sufficient to keep up fifteen hens and raise a few chickens for the family table. Then the question arises, what variety would be best to keep? Most everyone has their favorite breed, but after keeping Leghorns, Whites and Browns Wyandottes, Rhode Island Reds and White and Barred Plymouth Rocks, I have come to the conclusion that the American breeds are best suited to confinement and to small yards, and of the American breeds first the Barred Plymouth Rocks suit the best. They are quiet, good layers. When you kill one, you get excellent meat and plenty of it.

SCHOOLS MAKING GOOD AMERICANS

New Members of Board of Education Pleased With What They Saw in the High School and in School No. 3.

What the Kingston schools are doing to produce good American citizens who by reason of their training will be able to earn their living or perform other duties was the theme of two interesting reports made to the board of education at its regular meeting Friday evening by Trustees Virgil B. Van Wagoner and Wesley D. Hale.

President Van Wagoner said that the visiting committee unfortunately had been able to visit only two of the schools—the high school and No. 3. He was frank to say that he had come to the high school prejudiced against the vocational end of the institution and minimizing the importance of several vocational features of the curriculum, particularly the cooking department and the sewing room. He wished to be equally frank in saying that after spending a half day in the high school he found that he had an erroneous impression that the school not only with a very favorable impression but satisfied that the vocational training was a very excellent thing. He was well pleased with all that he saw at the high school. The only question on which he was not quite clear was whether the vocational end would distract the thought and attention of teachers and pupils from other branches, or take time which should be devoted to other studies.

Mr. Van Wagoner has been a teacher himself, before becoming a lawyer, but he said he never enjoyed himself more than he did when the committee visited School No. 3. Without disparagement to the other schools or their pupils, he thought that in No. 3 was the best building material he ever had seen—the best material in the rough for making good American citizens to be found anywhere. The pupils were only hungry for knowledge but were grasping and most anxious for it and it was a pleasure to see what the principal and teachers were doing to satisfy them.

One Lesson is Cleanliness.

When the committee entered one of the rooms, the pupils were going through their calisthenic exercises, and as their hands rose and fell he noticed that the pupils, without exception, "had the prettiest lot of white palms" he ever had seen. Their hands were clean, and as their sleeves dropped, they showed that the cleanliness extended up the arm, and their finger nails were clean. The sight, he was frank to admit, made him look at his own hands in shame.

Self Control The Greatest Lesson.

The children in whose studies he had particularly interested himself for the purpose of ascertaining what they were doing were between six and ten years old. While he was interested in seeing them learning to read, to write, to spell, to use English correctly, and to learn as much as their grades may teach of geography and other subjects, he was particularly impressed and pleased to see the children being taught the principles which underlie American government—the principles of self control, obedience, promptness, respect to their superiors and politeness. There was not a sullen face to be seen anywhere; all were eager and anxious to respond and they acted as promptly as though they were moving on springs.

Where They Learn Patriotism.

The school, like the other city schools, is provided with a phonograph, and several selections were played. The instant that the strains of "America" were heard, the pupils with one accord rose to their feet and remained standing until the song ended.

The work of the pupils in the high school did not interest him as much as the work of the pupils in No. 3, and the work of all the grammar schools was in keeping with that which he saw at No. 3, he was well satisfied that grand work was being accomplished in Kingston.

Melting Pot For Making Americans.

Trustee Wesley D. Hale said if he was to offer only brief remarks, the briefest would be to say "Amen" to what Mr. Van Wagoner had said. It was quite a good many years since he went to school, and was impressed during his visit that conditions had changed since then, and the change had been an improvement. He desired to withhold either praise or criticism of the high school until he had a chance to study its workings thoroughly, but at School No. 3, which he had particularly observed, he never saw anything which had so strongly impressed him or anything which was such a tremendous success.

If No. 3 was a sample of what the city schools were doing, they were doing a greater good than anyone could imagine. He had seen nothing in recent years which was so pregnant for good and for the future welfare of this country. They were making Americans there, and taking them right from parents and gathered together from all parts of the earth, the children would seem to be in a great melting pot from which they were coming out with the foundation of stalwart American citizenship ingrained in them. Out of raw material was being made a better American product than most people knew about.

The proficiency of the pupils in certain, said Mr. Hale, was well beyond anything he had seen, and in correcting mistakes they were able to give the reasons for their corrections. He was thoroughly delighted with all he had seen, and could not recall any other half day which he had spent that gave such satisfaction. He believed also that Principal Cullen was the right man in the right place.

President Bernstein continued Trustees Van Wagoner and Hale on the March visiting committee, and added himself to the committee.

Unsatifactory Fan Will Be Replaced.

A communication from John H. Cooney of Harrison, N. J., one of the contractors for work in connection with the high school, stated that the manufacturers of the fresh air fan would replace the present fan, which is unsatisfactory, with a larger fan of greater capacity, and were now at work on the larger fan.

David Goldstein to Lecture.

A communication from Kingston Council, No. 275, Knights of Columbus, requested the use of the high school auditorium on March 22 for a lecture on "Peace and War" by David Goldstein of Boston. The lecture will be free to the public. On motion of Trustee Van Wagoner, the request was granted on the usual conditions.

Lecture by L. A. Wilson.

Superintendent Michael said he had endeavored to secure L. A. Wilson of the state education department to deliver a lecture in the high school auditorium during the recent successful institute but had not received a letter from Mr. Wilson stating that he would be glad to lecture here at a future date and on motion of Surrogate Gill the matter was referred to Superintendent Michael, to arrange if possible with the Chamber of Commerce for his appearance here.

School Days Don't End Progress.

Trustee Hale asked whether the tendency of education had not advanced so as to provide lectures and other educational facilities for men and women after they had left school as well as during their school days.

Superintendent Michael replied that such had been the trend of education for some years, for which reason schools were used largely now for lectures and other educational objects, instead of being used as formerly merely for teaching classes.

Mr. Hale said he thought the modern trend was a good thing for men and women everywhere.

Routine Matters.

The finance committee reported the February pay roll, amounting to $10,643.57, and audited vouchers amounting to $1,780.91, which were ordered paid.

A resolution offered by the finance committee and adopted provided for deducting one per cent of the yearly salary of the teachers from their March salaries, in accordance with the requirements of the law relating to the teachers' retirement fund, the Kingston teachers having voted that such deduction be made from their March salaries.

Superintendent Michael said that the city charter amendment, which changed the time for collection of taxes, also changed the time for submitting the annual budget to the common council, and it must be in the hands of the aldermen by June 31st. June would be an extraordinarily busy month, and he suggested that the building committee and supply committee make up their lists as soon as possible.

Trustee Hale suggested that the committee be as economical as possible, but not so economical as to interfere with the good work of the schools. Taxes never had been popular, and the collection of the extra school tax this year on account of the change in the city charter which took effect this year would make taxes even more unpopular than ever. This extra tax, which would be for this year only, was quite apt to make school taxes unusually unpopular unless the matter was thoroughly understood.

The board then adjourned.

All the members of the board were present except Trustees Atkins, Rafferty and Washburn.

Automobile Collision.

On Friday evening a taxicab owned by Buley, the taxicab man, and an unknown touring car locked wheels on Main street in front of the Eagle Hotel. The light Ford taxi suffered a bent axle but was able to proceed on its journey. The big car was evidently not injured as the driver proceeded on his way without delay. The number of the machine was secured. The streets are in a very bad condition for either wagons or automobiles and all who use the streets are compelled to use unusual care. The deep snow which softened with the rain and rise in temperature Friday caused deep ruts to form from which it was difficult to release a machine once in them.

Barth Gets His Chance.

William Barth, a stranger who has been about town for about two weeks, was arrested on Friday afternoon by Policeman Fout. Barth had been making a nuisance of himself and was drunk at the time. This morning when arraigned before Recorder Lang he said that he had started to go to work on the ice, but owing to the storm on Friday there was no work, and he had got drunk. He did not remember just what occurred but hoped that he had done nothing unlawful. He pleaded for another chance. The recorder gave him one hour to get out of town or he would commit him to the pen at Albany. Barth got.

Illustrated Poems in School.

While some of the pupils of School No. 2 were delivering essays and recitations on the lives and works of Longfellow and Lowell, together with selections from their poems on Friday afternoon, stereopticon pictures were thrown on the screen, thereby making more vivid the verbal descriptions being given. This form of education is a novelty in the city schools and proved very popular with both the teachers and students. Instead of having an unfavorable idea of these two illustrious poets whose birthdays occur this month, the pupils find them to be very interesting members of the human race.

Initiative Enthusiasm.

Ad Atkins says his son-in-law has the sort of enthusiasm which is largely devoted to starting the apples—Ackison Globe.

RAIN ENDS CREEK ICE HARVESTING

The severe rain storm of Friday has put a stop to the harvesting of ice on the Rondout creek and on the river harvesting is being carried on under difficulties today at Glasco, Steep Rocks and Kingston Point. The rainfall raised the water in the creek to such an extent that it broke the ice up while in the river the ice was wasted from an inch to two inches. Further up where the river is narrower the work of harvesting is practically at a stop.

The rain did so much damage to the ice in the creek that it was not considered safe to walk across today and the wooden bridges that had been placed on each shore were removed this morning.

Unless there is a sudden change in the weather it is not likely that the concerns who have been busy harvesting will be enabled to secure a full crop this season.

JOSEPH HANEL

CONFESSES HE SLEW WOMAN WHO AIDED HIM.

Joseph Hanel, Photographed on his Return to New York.

New York, Feb. 26.—Joseph E. Hanel, self confessed murderer of Mrs. Julia Heilner, his invalid employer, on April 23, 1915, is now held without bail in a Brooklyn jail for examination next Tuesday, February 29.

Hanel confessed he killed Mrs. Heilner when she found him robbing the home into which he had been taken as a butler to save him from starvation. He said his Baltimore confession, in which he implicated an accomplice, was false. He admitted to the district attorney that he had worked alone.

Hanel, according to an employee of the district attorney's office, who was present during the confession, said he had no intention of slaying Mrs. Heilner when he planned to rob the house.

"But," Hanel is quoted as saying, "I had cleaned out the upstairs and had the $12,000 worth of jewels and silverware on me ready to go when Mrs. Heilner came into the kitchen. 'I was frightened. I didn't know what to do. I wanted to run, but I was afraid she'd scream. Then before I knew it I threw the bottle of beer at her and it struck her on the head. She fell to the floor, and then I strangled her with the rope. Then I quietly left the house, made Philadelphia without trouble and there pawned the jewels. After that things were easy."

The prisoner said he had served a term of one year in 1906 for a theft in Baltimore. Three years after that he had joined the Salvation Army, working for that body for three years. He was sent, he said, to Blackwell's island for three months in 1912 for a theft in East 120th street, and from April, 1913, to November, 1914 he was in the Holmesburg prison, Philadelphia, for robbery. He applied for help to the Seamen's Mission early in 1915. They sent him to the Heilner home.

Just Split the Difference.

In a jury trial in a small town not many miles from civilization the rural gentlemen into whose hands the case of the plaintiff and defendant was placed were so stubbornly divided that they were some twenty odd hours in reaching a verdict. As they left the court, after having rendered the verdict, one of them was asked by a friend what the trouble was. "Well," he said, "six on 'em wanted to give the plaintiff $4,000, and six on 'em wanted to give him $3,000, so we split the difference and gave him $3,500."

Giving Them Fair Warning.

William, soon after he started to school, came home one day and said: "Some boys at school are beginning to meddle with me and they had better stop it."

The 'Chain' Tread Tire has the two necessary features to prevent skidding and slipping, particularly on wet pavements—the dig-in and the suction.

The height of the chain above the surface of the tire gives the dig-in quality.

The cup-like shape of the links gives the necessary suction to hold to the road.

HIGH SCHOOL LOSES ELLENVILLE GAME

Ellenville administered the second and worst defeat that the Kingston High School basketball quintet has suffered this season in a game at Ellenville Friday night the score being 35 to 11. The game was played according to professional rules and the locals have no alibi to offer. They were simply outclassed from start to finish. The Ellenvillers were supported by about 400 loyal fans who were rooting for their athletes all through the contest. Kierman was the principal point getter for the home boys while Dove and Freer distinguished themselves by their playing at the forward positions for Ellenville. At half time matters did not look so bad for Kingston, the score being 14 to 5, but in the last stanza the Ellenville aggregation came back strong and rolled up a high score. Kingston's score follows:

	FB.	FP.	Pct.
Kiernan, J.	2	1	1

THEY SAY.

A good yarn is being told at the expense of a resident of lower Broadway, who resides near the Orpheum theater. The theater recently advertised the great movie play "Damaged Goods" and for several days before the picture was scheduled a huge sign bearing the title was stretched in front of the building. The old resident was standing out in front of his domicile the other day when a friend came along and stopped to chat with him.

"What makes you look so serious?" asked the friend.

"Well, I'll tell you," said the old resident. "See that sign on the opera house over yonder? You can't get ahead of some people."

"Why, what do you mean?" queried the friend.

"Well, here they are advertising a sale of damaged goods and I'll swear I have watched the place for the past week and not a lot of damaged goods have they taken in there to sell."

Roadout Baptists Win.

The downtown Baptists defeated the uptown Baptists in another match game in the Y. M. C. A. Church at the association on Friday evening at the association by a score of 1,907 to 1,890 pins.

Need for Consideration.
"What should one do," asks the young doctor, "when a patient comes in and diagnoses his own case exactly?" "In such a situation," explains the experienced physician, "you must use your best judgment of human nature. If the patient is one kind of man he will appreciate your agreeing with his diagnosis as showing that he knows as much as you do; on the other hand he may go about and say that you don't know any more than he does."

Not a Thing to Boast Of.
Moscow reports that a Russian surgeon has succeeded in transplanting the nerves of a young pig into the human body. Surely this cannot be a new achievement of surgery. We see people every day who apparently have the nerve of a hog.—Houston Post.

Eugenic War of Future.
Officer (pointing to prisoner):—"If you find any suspicious papers on this man, shoot him. If not, shoot him anyhow, he's crossed."

MORAN WILL BE EASY

Jess Willard Is Confident of Making Fight a Short One.

Champion Thinks He Will Stop Challenger in Eight Rounds at New York—Seeking Another Battle During Month of April.

Jess Willard, heavyweight champion boxer, has never been given to boasting, but he has broken his rule since the match with Frank Moran scheduled for March 17 in New York was closed. This is probably due to this being his first chance to do so since he won the championship. Willard declares the fight with Moran will not go the ten rounds and he doubts if the Pittsburgher will last eight with him.

"I am going to make this fight as short as possible," said Willard, "although I hate to deprive the fans of the chance to see a lot of fighting for their money, but I think they will be satisfied with what they have seen after I finish with Moran. This will be only a ten-round bout and you can bet that I will fight hard and fast from the start until it ends."

"Moran, people say, is a terrific puncher. I am glad of that. The thought that he can hit will make him fight all the better, and that is what I like. When I step into the ring I like to have a man stand up and battle. It makes the work so much more interesting. But I am afraid that Moran will not have much opportunity to test his punching power after I get my left job to working. You know my left is long, has a sting behind it and shoots out with a lot of speed. Moran may want to quit after a few punches reach home."

Champion Jess Willard.

Willard is eager to have another match after he battles Moran. He instructed his manager to seek another bout, as he feels he would like to meet another foe so long as he is in shape and has gone through all this gymnasium and outdoor training to get into trim. Jones asserts he will accept a match for April if it is offered, but it must be before April 29, as it is on that date the champion starts on his tour with a circus.

FATE OF FAMOUS CRESCUS

Former Great Trotting Stallion Now Dragging Heavy Ordnance and Supplies in Russia.

Reports that have reached George Ketcham of Toledo, O., former owner, trainer and driver of the lion-hearted trotter, Cresceus, 2:02 1/4, state that the former great trotting stallion is now dragging heavy ordnance and supplies over the snow-crusted steppes of the Baltic provinces where the forces of the czar are in a death grip with Von Hindenburg.

Cresceus won hundreds of thousands of dollars for Mr. Ketcham. He began to earn big dividends on the money Mr. Ketcham had invested in him when, in 1901, he defeated The Abbott, who had held the world's trotting record six years at 2:03 1/4.

Cresceus, a superb stallion of Arabic strain, clipped one whole second off The Abbott's record, and thereafter within the next two years cut his own record down till at last he was able to make a mile in 1:59 1/4.

The feat of cutting the record below two minutes astonished horsemen the world over.

But fame is fleeting. In time there came along another trotting stallion. The Harvester, that clipped an almost infinitesimal space of time off the best time Cresceus could make.

As though his wounded pride were killing him, Cresceus began to deteriorate rapidly, and within a few years his racing days were over. He was a young, full blooded charger, and his owner, Mr. Ketcham, had no difficulty in getting a big price for him from the Russian government, which wanted him for breeding purposes. But it seems he was not a success as a sire of fast stock and he was put to work just like any other common, low-born equine.

Here's Another Giant Fighter.
Lew Bodie, a giant miler, has been unearthed in Montana. Lew has been taken in hand by Harry Pollock, who intends to match him against the big fellows. The Montana candidate for pugilistic fame is taller than Jess Willard and has a longer reach. Bodie goes skyward some 6 feet 6 inches and his reach is 85 inches. In fighting condition he weighs 315 pounds.

Good in Industry.
Thank God every morning that you have something to do that day which must be done, whether you like it or not. Being forced to work and to do your best will breed you a hundred virtues which the idle will never know.—Charles Kingsley.
